Uncaging Creativity

Gossip Girls artistic dad, Matthew Settle, has teamed up with TigerCamp Director, Rose Tafoya, to contribute his creative wisdom and energy to the 12-15 year olds enrolled in TigerCamp, a daily character education camp scheduled for March 17-19, 2008 at the Sacramento Zoo. Settle states that he is excited to help kids learn and discover their own talents, skills, and creativity.

Tigercamp has invited many other community leaders to participate in the daily activities and contribute their wisdom to the campers. Currently all efforts are in place to welcome Matthew Settle, Gavin & Joe Maloof, a Kings player, Monarchs Coach, Bud Gardner, Jennifer Martin, and other local media talent.

TigerCamp implements the Tiger Woods Foundation Character Education Program. It is a character education, career exploration, and service-learning curriculum in conjunction with creative self-expression activities. Each student will be inspired to learn, explore, create, and set goals that will make a difference in their academic, social, and future lives. For more information or to enroll go to www.tigercamp.us or call 916-933-5046. Space is limited.
